

Riveting, Courageous, and Heartfelt Adventure April 14, 2009
by D. L. Piper (Southfield, MI USA)

This review is from: BELIZE SURVIVOR: Darker Side of Paradise (Paperback)

It was a pleasure beyond these words to get to read this book. Nancy brings great courage to the pages of her story; courage to re-think it, to write it, to publish it (and all _that_ involves), let alone to actually live it. Each chapter is a new adventure and each beckoned me on to the next. I happened to read the book on vacation in the Carribean, it was amazing to me that I could spend hours riveted to Nancy's story, get up and walk the beach, and then return for more... several times each day, EVERY DAY. Her descriptions of places and activities are so vivid and technically accurate that I knew that she actually lived them. Any number of her adventures would quench the desires of most, let alone the accumulation of them.

We get to experience her bliss and joy, terror and pain, humiliation and degradation, hope and redemption all in the pages of her book/her life... and I experienced those emotions while reading. Some of it was so close to my own story making it difficult to read but the author's words compelled me to continue, wanting to see her come through the other side. She bared her heart for all, showing great fortitude still today. A sequal and movie are on my wish list!